

Seasonal Display Containers

FALL 2013

All containers listed have a label indicating its number and location. By matching the location and number of the container with the information on this Website, you will be able to identify all the plants growing in each container. There are four types of plants that are typically used in a container design. Some of our containers may incorporate all four types, while others may use only a few.

The four plant types are:

- 1) Background Plants: These plants are usually the tallest, placed in the back of the container for height.
 - 2) Center Plants: These plants are also quite tall, used as an anchor plant in the center of the container, when no Background Plants are used.
 - 3) Mid-Height Plants: These intermediate sized plants are typically used in front of the Background Plant or they can surround the Center Plants in a container. In smaller containers, they can be used by themselves or with Trailing Plants incorporated into the design, if so desired.
- Trailer Plants: These plants cascade over the edge of the container, resulting in a trailing effect. These plants are often used in combination with any or all of the plant types mentioned above.
