

Dave Orleans, The Earthsinger

Dave Orleans is a singer, songwriter, and guitarist, specializing in an earth-friendly, family-style music he calls "Earthsinging". Accompanying himself on guitar, banjo ukulele, and other unique and recycled instruments, Dave presents a lively blend of original and "recycled" songs and stories about the natural world and our place in it.

In addition to his children's and family-oriented music, he also performs folk and popular favorites from the 50's to the present, and contemporary adult earth-friendly music.

Dave has performed his music from coast to coast, in New Jersey and throughout the Mid-Atlantic states since the 1980s, and from 2005 in the Portland Metro area of Oregon.

Dave is also a retired park naturalist, environmental educator, and amateur folklorist and historian. Now living in Aurora, he is excited to explore his new home here at "The Third Coast" of the Great Lakes.

Contact Dave by phone at 971-533-5548 or by email at earthsinger@comcast.net for information about his music and environmental education programs, including school assemblies, naturalist-in-residence programs, nature walks, and other natural history programs.
